

Press release

06 octobre 2009

Norman R. Foster Visiting Professorship Established at Yale University

Pritzker-Prize laureate and Yale School of Architecture alumnus Norman Foster and his family have donated $3 million to Yale School of Architecture to fund a visiting professorship in his name, Yale University President Richard C. Levin has announced.

This permanent endowment will support a visiting professorship program each year, allowing students at Yale to be taught by some of the leading international practitioners in the field of architecture from all over the world.

With this generous gift one of the Schools most distinguished graduates, Norman Foster, is allowing us to use his name to attract to the Yale faculty the most prominent architects of their times for generations to come, said Levin.

Robert A.M. Stern, dean of the Yale School of Architecture, reiterated the importance of the gift to the School,

It is a tremendous honor for our School to have the Lord Norman R. Foster Visiting Professorship in Architecture, and it will be an equally significant honor for the individuals selected to fill the chair. Lord Foster is, and has always been, an outstanding role model for excellence in our profession.

Lord Foster said,

My time at Yale and the people I was exposed to there, in particular Paul Rudolph, Serge Chermayeff and Vincent Scully, had an incredible impact on me. Rudolph created a studio atmosphere which was highly creative, competitive and fueled by a succession of visiting luminaries. That same can-do approach has influenced and inspired my practice for more than 40 years and continues to do so. I hope this gift will similarly inspire future generations of students. It is also a recognition of my personal gratitude to the United States and my commitment to Yale and education.

Notes:

Visiting professors in the Yale School of Architecture play an integral role in the education of tomorrow's architects. Each term, the foremost architects and designers lead advanced studios to expose students to the latest cross-currents of ideas and ideologies in current architectural practice. Foster (M.Arch. Yale 1962) has established the endowment for the Norman R. Foster Visiting Professorship to add support to this longstanding and defining visiting critic system.

Norman Foster is one of the most important architects practicing in the world today. He is chairman and founder of Foster + Partners, an international practice with project offices worldwide. One of their more recently opened offices, in New York, oversees projects throughout the United States. Over the past

For further information
please contact Katy Harris at
Foster + Partners,
T +44 (0)20 7738 0455
F +44 (0)20 7738 1107
E press@fosterandpartners.com

four decades the practice has pioneered a sustainable approach to architecture and ecology through a strikingly wide range of work, from urban master plans, public infrastructure, airports, civic and cultural buildings, offices and workplaces to private houses and product design. He received the 21st Pritzker Architecture Prize in 1999, the RIBA & AIA Gold Medals in 1983 and 1994, respectively, and was awarded the Praemium Imperiale Award for Architecture in 2002. In 2009, he became the 29th laureate of the prestigious Prince of Asturias Award for the Arts.

Stern has announced that the first Norman R. Foster Visiting Professor will be Alejandro Zaera-Polo, theorist, architect and co-founder of London-based Foreign Office Architects (FOA). With projects throughout North America, Europe and Asia, FOA has a world reputation for combining technical innovation with critically acclaimed design. The firm's best-known project, the Yokohama International Port Terminal, received the RIBA Worldwide Award and the Enric Miralles Prize in 2004, and the Kanagawa Prize in 2003. The John Lewis Department Store and Cineplex in Leicester, UK and the Meydan Retail Complex in Istanbul are two other recent FAO projects that garnered international architectural and design awards.

For further information contact:

Dorie Baker
dorie.baker@yale.edu

For further information

please contact Katy Harris at
Foster + Partners,

T +44 (0)20 7738 0455

F +44 (0)20 7738 1107

E press@fosterandpartners.com