Exploring the City hits top three exhibition attendance figures for 2001

With a daily attendance figure of 2,314 Exploring the City: the Foster Studio came third in the top eight London exhibitions, according to figures released by The Art Newspaper today. The Foster and Partners exhibition, shown at the British Museum last year from June to October, beat the likes of Turner: The Great Watercolours at the Royal Academy of Arts and William Blake at Tate Britain, and came in the top 50 exhibition attendance figures worldwide.
