Fosters unveil the 'Three Sixty' table lamp

The new Foster-designed 'Three Sixty' table lamp was launched in Milan this week. Designed for FontanaArte. The joints on the arm, stem and head each allow a 360 rotation, enabling light to reach any point on a table surface.

The lamp is an elegant, slender composition of material, with a ZAMAC base and stem, an arm cast in brass and polycarbonate resin disc. It is available in brass, painted in matte white, dark grey or aluminium, with a painted resin luminous disk.

Currently the light comes only with halogen bulbs but there will eventually be a low energy florescent version.

The 'Three Sixty' lamp measures 90x22x54cm.

The range will shortly be expanded to include floor and ceiling models with the same slender profile.
